Candidates Ready For City Election

Two withdrawals since the caucus.
C. M. Coulter only nominee for School Director.

At a spirited citizen's caucus held at the town hall last Saturday evening, the following candidates were nominated from which the seven city councilmen will be chosen at the town election next week:

Chas. Benjamin,
C. H. Borch,
T. J. Case,
L. M. Churchill,
C. A. Emery,
D. Lewis,
M. Healy,
C. Nelson,
L. C. Patenaude,
Jorgen Ronning,
A. T. Spader,
C. E. Weber,
J. H. Wheeler.

Since the caucus Chas. Nelson and L. C. Patenaude have formally withdrawn their names from the list.

Only one candidate, C. M. Coul-

4 Ton Ice Machine

J. J. McTague, proprietor of the Wrangell Meat Market, received his long-looked-for ice machine on the Curacao Tuesday. The machine, which will be run by a 9 h. p. motor, has the capacity of freezing four tons of ice per day.

Mr. Albright, who is installing the machine, is master mechanic for the Carsten people.

Logical Conclusion.

An amusing incident happened some time ago in one of the Paris courts of justice. A vain, haughty woman was called as a witness, when the magistrate inquired her age.

"Twenty-five last August," promptly replied the lady.

The next witness was a young man, who at once acknowledged that he was twenty-seven years of age.

"Are you related to the last witness?" queried the magistrate.

"Yes, I'm her son," he replied.

"Ah," mused the magistrate. "Your mother must have married very young."

ter, was nominated for School Director. Mr. Coulter had not intended to become a candidate for reelection but can hardly withdraw against the expressed wish of the people at the caucus.

Extent of St John's Harbor Copper Ledge Proves its Value

Paley sinks shaft 60 ft from outcrop. Ledge struck at depth of three hundred feet.

John Paley, discoverer and locator of the St. John's Harbor copper claims, came in from Zarembo Monday and gives a gratifying account of the extent of the ledge determined by six months of sinking shafts and uncovering surface outcroppings. He has been on the property six months and with the help of one man has sunk a 4 x 4 shaft, 60 ft back from the outcrop, to a depth of 300 feet where the ledge was struck, proving the existence of an immense ore body for the ledge is from 7 to 14 feet thick and has been traced on the surface for 3,000 feet. The actual extent of the body can only be imagined but the comparatively unbroken condition of the rock formations on Zarembo Island lead one to believe that the vein may extend many more than 300 feet below the surface.

Paley will go south on the first boat to again put the matter before the Tacoma Smelting people who investigated the property last June. Other copper reducing firms will be asked to investigate the property and as the sinking of the shaft has proved the existence of a large ore body, it is expected that some firm will take over the property by bond or purchase in the very near future.

Delegates Chosen Cordova Convention

At the republican caucus held at the Wrangell Hotel last Thursday evening, F. Matheson, J. G. Grant and P. C. McCormack were chosen to represent the Wrangell Precinct at the republican territorial convention to be held at Cordova where the selection of a republican candidate for Delegate to Congress will be made.

"Square Deal" Movement Endorses Candidates

At a well attended meeting held on Monday night the "Square Deal" movement pledged their unanimous support to the following candidates:-

Dr. Emery.
Mr. Churchill.
Mr. Spader.
Mr. Benjamin.
Mr. Wheeler.
Mr. Borch.
Mr. Dave Lewis.

We believe these candidates are in sympathy with the people and, if elected, will do their best.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given, that the book for the registration of voters for the coming municipal election, to be held April 2nd, 1912, is now open at the Patenaude Building and will be open until March 30th, 1912.

Dated Feb. 21, 1912.

N. J. SVINDSETH.

Registrar.

The Foot Astray.

William F. Cody was once relating a story which concerned an Indian who had met with an accident in a Buffalo Bill show. It was necessary to amputate the Indian's leg, and in the description of this operation Cody was interrupted frequently by a young doctor who injected technical and medical terms into the straight vernacular of the scout. He was irritated, but ignored the doctor. "A few days after the operation," continued the narrator, "the Indian learned that his leg had been buried. With a whoop he leaped from his bed and jumped upon the doctor with both feet."

"Jumped with both feet after an operation?" shouted the doctor, exulting in his exposure of the great scout's absurd story.

"I said upon the doctor with both feet," explained Cody. "In order to distinguish him from the other hospital physician, who had only one foot, having put the other into people's affairs so often that he lost it."

Cold Storage Machinery Coming

Pacific Coast Manager of Columbia & Northern on way to Wrangell Bringing plant equipment.

Advices received the first of the week at the local office of the Columbia & Northern Fishing & Packing Company, were to the effect that E. H. Joseph, Pacific Coast Manager of the company, will arrive on an early boat with the full equipment of machinery for the cold storage plant. Alterations of the building will begin immediately after Mr. Joseph's arrival and it is expected that only a short time will be necessary to make the plant ready to take care of its share of the spring salmon.

The Ideal Cove station will be run as usual. Many responsible fishermen have already been outfitted with nets, tierces and salt and the outlook is good for a profitable season for this branch of the company.

How much capital stock will you take in a Winter Resort in Alaska?

Only two days more for registration Gentlemen. Only until March 30th in which to comply with the simple formality that permits you to vote.

Is there a man who misses no opportunity to complain of the don't care gone-to-the-dogs condition of the country and who fails to go to the polls on election day and give a vote for a candidate or measure that he believes would help his condition? A few such may be found but there are numbers who do not vote because they think the issues of the election do not directly concern them and thereby pass up the privilege for which their forefathers fought. Wrangell has a city election in April. There are a number of candidates in the field from which to select the seven councilmen to whom the business of the city will be entrusted for a year. Whatever your selections may be, you owe those candidates the best and official expression of value, a vote.

Notes From Washington

(By J. J. Underwood)

John L. Willson, head of the Pacific Coast Delegation, is in favor of the recall, in so far as it applies to his returning to Seattle. During the past two weeks he has been endeavoring to get the Flood bill reported out of the committee. This is about all that can be expected in the matter of railroad legislation this winter. Congressman Sulzer's bill is still in committee, but as it provides for an appropriation, it is not likely to be reported for action at this session. Owing to the death of Mrs. Sulzer's mother in New York, the Congressman has been absent from town the past week.

Through an arrangement made by the Secretary of the Treasury, at the request of Senator Wilson, revenue cutters in the North will carry mail next summer to the fishermen at Bristol Bay and other places along the coast which are off the regular steamship lines.

President Taft, a few days ago, promised Senator Wilson that he would confer with the Secretary of war at an early date in regard to a reduction of the Alaska cable tolls. In this connection, Falcon Joslyn recently entered into a contract with the government to transmit messages from Katlag to Iditarod. Joslyn has about completed his plan to install a number of wireless stations in Alaska, and is going to submit to the government a proposition by which he will undertake to transmit all official messages and save the government $150,000 a year on their present cost. In addition to this, he will agree to furnish the people of Alaska telegraphic communication at a reduction of twenty-five per cent on the present prices.

Delegate Wickersham has introduced a new bill for the relief of the indigent of Alaska in substitution of the one he prepared and introduced some time ago. The bill provides that ten percent of the road fund of Alaska shall be converted quarterly into the Treasury Department and disbursed among the four United States Marshals in Alaska every three months to be used in the relief of the indigents. The bill also provides that the unused portions of these sums shall be turned back into the road fund every three months. This is a cumbersome method. It would have been much simpler to have drawn the bill so that the Marshals could have drawn on the road fund for the amounts needed; within specified limitations. It would have been a still better plan to have taken this money for the relief of the indigents from the school fund. The school fund already has more than enough money, while the road fund, on the contrary, is sadly lacking in resources. This plan was provided for in the bill which Senator Nelson introduced and passed in the Senate.

The introduction of a bill by Senator Jones to increase the tax on salmon is going to meet a strenuous fight on the part of the fishing (Continued on last page.)

A SOLEMN MYSTERY.

Mark Twain Declared It Cast a Gloom Over His Whole Life.

Once upon a time Mark Twain was interviewed. After various questions the interviewer came to the question of relatives, and from then on, according to Twain's own version of things, the conversation ran thus:

"Who is this picture on the wall? Isn't that a brother of yours?"

"Oh, yes, yes! Now that you remind me of it that was a brother of mine. That's William—Bill, we called him. Poor old Bill!"

"Why, is he dead, then?"

"Ah, well, I suppose so. We never could tell. There was a great mystery about it."

"That was very, very sad. He disappeared, then?"

"Well, yes, in a general sort of way. We buried him."

"Buried him! Buried him without knowing whether he was dead or not?"

"Oh, no; not that! He was dead enough."

"Well, I confess that I can't understand this. If you buried him and you knew he was dead?"

"No, no! We only thought he was."

"Oh, I see. He came to life again."

"I bet he didn't."

"Well, I never heard anything like this. Somebody was dead; somebody was buried. Now, where was the mystery?"

"That's just it! That's it exactly! You see, we were twins, defunct and I, and we got mixed in the bathtub when we were only two weeks old, and one of us was drowned, but we didn't know which. Some think it was Bill; some think it was me."

"Well, that was remarkable. What do you think?"

"Goodness knows! I would give whole worlds to know. This solemn, this awful mystery has cast a gloom over my whole life. But I will tell you a secret now which I have never revealed to any creature before. One of us had a peculiar mark, a large mole, on the back of his left hand. That was me. That child was the one that was drowned. So you see they made an awful blunder. I was drowned, but they went and buried the wrong child. Sh-h-h-h! Don't say a thing about it where the family can hear it. It's a very sore spot."

What the Type Said.

Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, was one of a group of newspaper men who during a convention of that fraternity were one afternoon talking of typographical errors. Said he: "While I've heard of a great many funny typographical breaks in my time, about the oddest and most humorous transposition of types that ever came to my observation was that in a New York paper some years ago. The paper used to print its shipping news on the same page with the obituaries. Imagine the glee with which its readers found the captions changed one morning, a long list of respectable names being set forth under the marine head, 'Passed Through Hell Gate Yesterday.'"

Very Thoughtful of Him.

A young gentleman who lives some where west of Euclid village and a bit east of the square has always been noted for his good breeding, and though as a college student he has sometimes been a trifle worse for hours, he has never forgotten his code. A few weeks ago he made a determined effort to enter a dwelling which he firmly believed to be his own. It was met at the door by an angry man in pajamas, who told him that he had made a grievous mistake and, further more, requested him not to make so much noise, because his (the householder's) wife was very ill. Our friend made abject and ample apologies and departed. His own home eluded him again, however, and in a few minutes he was knocking at the same door. The worried man in pajamas again descended.

"I told you before that this is my house," he shouted angrily. "And I told you that my wife is ill. What do you mean by coming back here?"

"I rememb'r perfly what you told me about your sick house an' your own dear wife," answered the wayfarer solemnly, even tearfully. "And I couldn't sleep thinkin' about 'em. I came back to ask if they are better."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Scotch Consolation.

A story is told of a canny Scot who dealt in old horses, alternating his spells of labor with heavy snores. During the period of depression which followed each overindulgence John habitually took to bed and there diligently studied the family Bible. During one of these fits of attempted reformation his condition prompted his wife to call in the Rev. Mr. Wallace, the parish minister, who at the time happened to be passing.

"Oh, Maister Wallace, come in an see oor John. He's rale bad."

"What's wrang wi' him?"

"He's feart to meet his Makker."

"Quick as fire came the crushing reply:

"Humph! Tell'm he needna be feart for that. He'll never see'm"

MADE THEM HOP.

A Story They Tell in Washington About Senator Jeff Davis.

Senator Jeff Davis and a valued constituent were in the senate gallery one day during the recent session. The constituent was visiting Washington for the first time. It was a dull moment in the senate, and not one-tenth of the seats were occupied.

"It looks dead down there, Jeff," said the Arkansas visitor, viewing the vacant chairs.

"You keep your seat and I'll stir them up," said Senator Davis, rising. Two minutes later Mr. Davis was addressing the vice president.

"I suggest that there is no quorum," said the senator quietly, so that his friend from home did not hear.

Immediately the bells began to ring, the clerk to call the roll and senators to swarm in from the cloakrooms, the corridors and their rooms. The room filled, Mr. Davis answered his name and returned to the side of his constituent.

"See them come?" asked the senator. "All that I have to do to make them hop is to appear on the floor."—Washington Cor. New York World.

interests. The bill had not left the Department of Commerce and Labor fifteen minutes before the national legislators were deluged by telegrams protesting against it. The only objection to the passage of the bill is that it will become a law after the fishermen have departed for the North, but as it is not the fishermen but the companies employing the fishermen that will have to pay the tax (if the bill is enacted into a law) this objection appears to be a very weak one.

The bill provides that after 1913 all private fish hatcheries in Alaska shall be abolished, and that hereafter taxes must be paid in real money, instead of affidavits stating that a certain number of fish had been released. The measure further provides that the part of a fish trap known as a "jigger" and that is claimed to give the salmon absolutely no chance to go upstream for spawning, shall be abolished. The tax is to be increased from four cents a case on all varieties to from five to eleven cents per case according to the grade of fish canned. It is certain that the bill is not going to get by without desperate opposition. It is a noticeable fact that the ultra-conservationists never make a fight to conserve anything that is in the hands of a monopoly.

A Ready Reckoner.

There are no cul-de-sacs for Irish wit. A "jarvey" drove Mr. Phil May, the wonderful English artist in black and white, now dead, round Dublin on his first visit to that city and in showing him the sights stopped in front of the Bank of Ireland.

decorative figures, and Mr. May inquired what they represented.

"Begorra, sorr, they're th' twelve apostles."

"But," said Mr. May, "there are only six."

"Sure, I know that," returned the jarvey. "Th' other wans are lunchin' wid th' lord liftinant."
